

Notes for contributors

Submission

Authors should submit three complete copies of their paper, including any original illustrations to:

Professors Lawrence Grossberg and Della Pollock, Editors of Cultural Studies, Department of Communication Studies, CB#3285, 115 Bingham Hall, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Chapel Hill, NC 27599–3285, USA; e-mail: cs-journ@email.unc.edu

It will be assumed that the author has retained a copy of his or her paper. Submission of a paper to Cultural Studies will be taken to imply that it presents original, unpublished work not under consideration for publication elsewhere.

Copyright

It is a condition of publication that authors assign copyright or licence the publication rights in their articles, including abstracts, to Taylor & Francis. This enables us to ensure full copyright protection and to disseminate the article, and of course the Journal, to the widest possible readership in print and electronic formats as appropriate. Authors may, of course, use the article elsewhere after publication without prior permission from Taylor & Francis, provided that acknowledgement is given to the Journal as the original source of publication, and that Taylor & Francis is notified so that our records show that its use is properly authorised. Authors retain a number of other rights under the Taylor & Francis rights policies documents. These policies are referred to at <http://www.tandf.co.uk/journals/authorrights.pdf> for full details. Authors are themselves responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce copyright material from other sources.

Manuscript format

All submissions should be in English, typed or computer printed in double spacing on one side of the paper only. Please include an abstract of up to 300 words (including 6 keywords) for purposes of review. All papers should conform to the reference system set out below. Submissions undergo blind peer review. Therefore, the author(s) name(s) should not appear anywhere on the manuscript except for on a detachable cover page along with an address, short biographical note and the title. Please supply an e-mail address and a contact number. Every effort will be made to complete the review process within six months of submission. An electronic version of the manuscript must be provided in the appropriate software format upon acceptance for publication.

Photographs, tables and figures

Photographs should be high contrast black and white glossy prints. Tables and figures need not be rendered professionally but should be neatly drawn in black ink.

Copyright-protected material

Written permission to reproduce photographs, tables, figures, song lyrics or any other copyright-protected material must be obtained by authors from the copyright-holders before submission.

Citation style

Manuscripts must conform to the Harvard reference style. When an author's name is mentioned in the text, the date alone is inserted in parentheses immediately after the name: Smith (1970). When a less direct reference is made the name and date are given together in parentheses. Several authors are separated by a comma: (Smith 1970, Mbene 1984).

When the reference is to dual or multiple authorship use: Smith and Jones (1971) for two authors and Smith et al. for more than two. Only use initials if two authors have the same surname: (Smith, A. 1970, Smith, B. 1971).

If two or more works by the same author are cited for the same year, add lower case letters after the date to distinguish them: (Smith 1970a, 1970b).

When using a republished book, a translation or a modern edition of an older book, give the date of the original publication as well: Smith (1970/1999). When using a reprinted article, cite the date of the original publication only.

When referring to mass media materials, include relevant information within parentheses: (Women's Weekly, 16 July 1983, p. 32).

Treat recorded music as a book: the musician or group is the author, the title is underlined and the distributor is listed as the publisher; treat television series and films similarly. Treat television episodes, poems, songs and short stories (i.e. works that are not usually published separately) as articles, placing the title in single quotation marks.

Proofs

PDF proofs will be sent for correction by email to the author whose name appears first on the title page of the article unless otherwise requested. The difficulty and expense involved in making amendments at this stage make it essential for authors to prepare their typescripts carefully: any alteration to the original text is strongly discouraged. The proofs should be returned as quickly as possible.

Offprints

An ‘eprint’ of the finished article and a copy of the issue in which the article appears will be supplied free of charge to the corresponding author; offprints are available on request, further information will be supplied with page proofs. There is no remuneration for publication in Cultural Studies.

Guidelines for Book Reviews

Cultural Studies publishes reviews of current books that are of potential interest to the journal’s main audience: i.e., an international readership of scholars, students, activists, and cultural workers interested in cultural studies (broadly defined). Given the cross/multi-disciplinary nature of the journal’s focus, reviews should focus specifically on the relevance of the book(s) in question to cultural studies (rather than to either the author's or the reviewer's 'home' discipline).

Completed reviews should be concise – i.e., 1000 words or less – and carefully proofread. External citations and endnotes do count against your word limit, so use them sparingly (if at all). Your review should include:

Heading information:

- Your name
- Title of the book review (short, preferably 5–6 words)
- Publication information: book author(s)/editor(s), book title, city/cities, publisher, date, page count, ISBN number and price for cloth/hardback, ISBN number and price for paperback.

Body of review:

- Brief description or explanation of the book's contents
- Discussion of the book's relevance to cultural studies
- Critical engagement with and assessment of the book's contents

Other information (on separate page):

- Word count of your review (excluding the heading information)
- Brief biographical note for the reviewer (2–3 lines)
- Your address/contact information (including phone number(s) and e-mail address)

General formatting guidelines:

- Reviews should be written in English and adhere to the journal's usual style guidelines (i.e., Harvard style).
- Reviews should be submitted in one of the following formats: WordPerfect (version 9.0 or earlier), Microsoft Word (2000 or earlier), or RTF (Rich Text Format).
- Reviews should be submitted either as an e-mail file attachment or on an IBM-compatible 3.5' floppy disk to the book review editor:

Cultural Studies wants to publish brief reports in English on published scholarship, research in progress, conferences, and other events, taking place or addressing places outside of the field's usual centers, particularly in languages other than English. We do not intend this column to be an occasion for publicity, announcements or formal scholarly reviews. Rather we seek to provide pointed summaries that will make the readers of the journal better aware of the range of cultural studies practices taking place around the world and sometimes, even in their own backyard. In this way, at the very least, we hope to foster a greater international conversation among dispersed cultural studies scholars working on common or related questions. Proposed contributions can be sent directly to the editors.
