

Contents

---

|                                                                                                                                                                              |      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| List of Contributors                                                                                                                                                         | xiii |
| Editor Biography                                                                                                                                                             | xvii |
| Preface                                                                                                                                                                      | xix  |
| Editorial Management Committees                                                                                                                                              | xxi  |
| Editorial                                                                                                                                                                    | xxv  |
| Graphical Abstract                                                                                                                                                           | xxix |
|                                                                                                                                                                              |      |
| 1. Phenomena of Emergences and Reemergencesof the Diseases: Evolution of the Concepts, Risk Factors,and State of the Art                                             |      |
| MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI                                                                                                                                                       |      |
| Conclusion                                                                                                                                                                   | 7    |
| Acknowledgments                                                                                                                                                              | 8    |
| References                                                                                                                                                                   | 8    |
| Further Reading                                                                                                                                                              | 9    |
|                                                                                                                                                                              |      |
| 2. Clustered Regularly Interspaced Short PalindromicRepeats/Cas9 Genome Editing Technology AgainstEmerging and Reemerging Virus                                      |      |
| AISSAM EL-ALIANI, YASSINE EL MALLALI, MOHAMMED EL MZIBRIAND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI                                                                                       |      |
| Introduction                                                                                                                                                                 | 11   |
| Hepatitis B Virus                                                                                                                                                            | 15   |
| Oncogenic Human Papillomaviruses 16 and 18                                                                                                                                   | 19   |
| Epstein-Barr Virus                                                                                                                                                           | 24   |
| Human Immunodeficiency Virus                                                                                                                                                 | 25   |
| Conclusion                                                                                                                                                                   | 26   |
| References                                                                                                                                                                   | 27   |
|                                                                                                                                                                              |      |
| 3. Infectious Bronchitis Virus in Poultry: Molecular Epidemiologyand Factors Leading to the Emergence and Reemergenceof Novel Strains of Infectious Bronchitis Virus |      |
| YOUSSEF ENNAJI, KHADIJA KHATABY AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI                                                                                                                   |      |
| Introduction                                                                                                                                                                 | 31   |
| Epidemiology of Infectious Bronchitis Virus                                                                                                                                  | 32   |
| Factors Leading to the Emergence of New Strains of Infectious Bronchitis Virus                                                                                               | 35   |

|                                                                             |    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Diagnosis Techniques of the Emerging Strains of Infectious Bronchitis Virus | 37 |
| Conclusion                                                                  | 40 |
| References                                                                  | 40 |
| Further Reading                                                             | 44 |

4. Molecular Modeling of Major Structural Protein Genes of Avian Coronavirus: Infectious Bronchitis Virus Mass H120 and Italy02 Strains

KHADIJA KHATABY, YASSINE KASMI, AMAL SOURI, CHAFIQA LOUFI
AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                                                                               |    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Introduction                                                                                  | 45 |
| Material and Methods                                                                          | 47 |
| Modeling of the Hypervariable Region of S1 Spicule Proteins                                   | 47 |
| Evaluation and Refinement of the Three-Dimensional Model                                      | 48 |
| Results                                                                                       | 49 |
| Modeling of the Hypervariable Region of S1 Spicule Proteins                                   | 49 |
| Stability of the Structure of the S1 Protein in Three-Dimensional                             | 50 |
| Evaluation of the Quality of the Three-Dimensional Model and Predictionof Antigenic Sites | 52 |
| Prediction of Antigenic Sites                                                                 | 53 |
| Discussion                                                                                    | 53 |
| Conclusion                                                                                    | 55 |
| Competing Interests                                                                           | 55 |
| References                                                                                    | 55 |

5. Biological Databases in Virology

PRAMODKUMAR FYARELAL GUPTA, VIRUPAKSHA AJIT BASTIKAR,
SANTOSH SUBHASH CHHAJED AND SHANKER LAL KOTHARI

|                                                                               |    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Introduction                                                                  | 57 |
| Relational Database Model                                                     | 58 |
| Characteristics of a Relational Table                                         | 59 |
| Keys                                                                          | 59 |
| National Centre for Biotechnology Information Viral Genome Resources          | 60 |
| ViralZone                                                                     | 61 |
| Virus Pathogen Database and Analysis Resource                                 | 62 |
| Virus Pathogen Database and Analysis Resource Analysis and Visualization Tool | 62 |
| Viral Protein Structure Resource                                              | 64 |
| Virus-Host Database                                                           | 66 |
| Descriptions of Plant Viruses                                                 | 66 |
| References                                                                    | 69 |

6. Involvement and Roles of Long Noncoding RNAs in the Molecular Mechanisms of Emerging and Reemerging Viral Infections

MARYAME LAMSISI AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|               |    |
|---------------|----|
| Abbreviations | 71 |
|---------------|----|

|                                                                                                                             |    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Introduction                                                                                                                | 72 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs in Virus Biology: Examples of Emerging Viral Pathogens                                                  | 73 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs Contribute to Viral Pathogenicity in Respiratory Diseases                                               | 79 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs Regulate Human Immunodeficiency Virus Replication and Maintain its Latency                              | 80 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs in Herpesviruses Latent to Lytic Cycle Transition                                                       | 81 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs Regulate the Transition From Latent to Lytic Phase in Kaposi's Sarcoma-Associated Herpesvirus Infection | 81 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs and Epstein-Barr Virus                                                                                  | 82 |
| Other Examples                                                                                                              | 83 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs in Viral-Host Interaction                                                                               | 84 |
| Immune Response Employs Long Noncoding RNAs Against Viruses                                                                 | 84 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs Modulate Viral Evasion of Immunity                                                                      | 85 |
| Long Noncoding RNAs as New Candidates for Viral Biomarker and Therapy                                                       | 86 |
| Conclusion                                                                                                                  | 89 |
| Acknowledgments                                                                                                             | 89 |
| Conflict of Interest                                                                                                        | 89 |
| References                                                                                                                  | 89 |

7. Scientific Advances in the Diagnosis of Emerging and Reemerging Viral Human Pathogens

RAHMA AIT HAMMOU, MUSTAPHA BENHASSOU, HLIMA BESSI
AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                                                           |     |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                             | 93  |
| Clinical Application of Molecular Methods                                 | 94  |
| First-Time Diagnosis                                                      | 97  |
| Examples of Molecular Detection of Viral Emerging and Reemerging Diseases | 98  |
| Disease Prognosis                                                         | 101 |
| Diagnosis by Microarrays                                                  | 101 |
| Molecular Diagnosis and Latest Generation Surveillance Systems            | 102 |
| Nanotechnology Diagnosis                                                  | 103 |
| MicroRNAs and Emerging Viral Infections                                   | 106 |
| Conclusion                                                                | 114 |
| Acknowledgments                                                           | 115 |
| References                                                                | 115 |

8. Introduction to Computational and Bioinformatics Tools in Virology

PRAMODKUMAR PYARELAL GUPTA, YASSINE KASMI AND ČRTOMIR PODLIPNIK

|                                                                                                 |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                                                   | 121 |
| Introduction                                                                                    | 121 |
| The First Question Asked, What are Bioinformatics, Chemoinformatics, and Computational Biology? | 122 |
| Biomathematics and Computational Biology                                                        | 123 |
| Database and Informatics                                                                        | 125 |
| Alignment and Phylogeny                                                                         | 127 |

|                                              |     |
|----------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction to Phylogenetic Analysis        | 132 |
| Bayesian and Maximum Likelihood of Phylogeny | 136 |
| Phylogenetics                                | 137 |
| Gene Prediction Methods                      | 137 |
| Introduction to Molecular Modeling           | 138 |
| Protein Structure Modeling and Prediction    | 139 |
| Molecular Dynamics and Force Fields          | 140 |
| Molecular Docking                            | 141 |
| References                                   | 143 |

9. Designing Antiviral Substances Targeting the Ebola Virus Viral Protein 24

FEDERICO DAPIAGGI, STEFANO PIERACCINI, DONATELLA POTENZA,
FRANCESCA VASILE AND ČRTOMIR PODLIPNIK

|                                                                                  |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                                    | 147 |
| Introduction                                                                     | 147 |
| Ebola Virus—Structure and Function                                               | 149 |
| Structure and Function of the Viral Protein 24                                   | 150 |
| Energetics of Viral Protein 24: Karyopherin $\alpha 5$ Complex                   | 151 |
| Design of Peptides Interfering Viral Protein 24—Karyopherin $\alpha$ Interaction | 153 |
| Small Molecules as Inhibitors of Viral Protein 24                                | 163 |
| Conclusions                                                                      | 172 |
| Acknowledgments                                                                  | 172 |
| References                                                                       | 173 |

10. Application of Nanodiagnostics in Viral Infectious Diseases

RAHMA AIT HAMMOU, MUSTAPHA BENHASSOU AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                                                |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                  | 179 |
| Introduction                                                   | 179 |
| Conventional Diagnosis for Infectious Diseases and Limitations | 180 |
| Application of Nanotechnology in Infectious Disease            | 183 |
| Conclusion                                                     | 191 |
| Acknowledgments                                                | 192 |
| References                                                     | 192 |

11. Baculovirus-Derived Vectors for Immunization and Therapeutic Applications

M. LAURA FABRE, PAULA N. ARRÍAS, TOMÁS MASSON, MATÍAS L. PIDRE
AND VÍCTOR ROMANOWSKI

|                                                                                        |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviation                                                                           | 197 |
| Biology of Baculoviruses                                                               | 198 |
| Genetic Engineering of Baculoviruses                                                   | 199 |
| Expression of Heterologous Proteins for Diagnosis and Immunization                     | 202 |
| The Baculovirus Expression Vector System for the Generation of Virus-LikeParticles | 206 |

|                                                                                                 |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Baculovirus Surface Display                                                                     | 207 |
| Baculovirus Expression Vector System Platform for the Production ofAdeno-Associated Viruses | 211 |
| Baculoviruses as Mammalian Transduction Vectors                                                 | 213 |
| Discussion                                                                                      | 214 |
| References                                                                                      | 215 |
| Further Reading                                                                                 | 223 |

12. Recombinant Veterinary Vaccines Against Rabies: State of Art and Perspectives

MARÍA PAULA DEL MÉDICO ZAJAC, DÉBORA GARANZINI, OSCAR RAMÓN PÉREZ
AND GABRIELA CALAMANTE

|                                        |     |
|----------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                          | 225 |
| Introduction                           | 226 |
| Viral-Vectored Vaccines Against Rabies | 227 |
| Concluding Remarks                     | 237 |
| References                             | 238 |

13. Epidemiology and Ecology of Emerging Viruses in Two Freshwater Lakes of the Northern Hemisphere

MAHI M. MOHIUDDIN AND HERB E. SCHELLHORN

|                                                                                        |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction                                                                           | 243 |
| Viral Community Structure                                                              | 244 |
| Sources of Pathogenic Viruses                                                          | 249 |
| Current Approaches for the Identification of Pathogens, Their Limitationsand Scope | 250 |
| Summary and Conclusion                                                                 | 252 |
| Acknowledgment                                                                         | 252 |
| References                                                                             | 252 |

14. Global Epidemiology and Genetic Variability of Rabies Viruses

DARKAOUI SAMI AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                               |     |
|-----------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction                                  | 259 |
| Etiology and Classification of Rabies Viruses | 260 |
| Structure of the Rabies Virus                 | 262 |
| Pathogenesis of Rabies                        | 265 |
| Virulence Factors of Rabies Virus             | 266 |
| Human Antirabies Vaccines                     | 268 |
| Veterinary Antirabies Vaccines                | 268 |
| References                                    | 272 |

15. Reemerging Virus: Case of Norovirus

YASSINE AMRAOUZA, MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI AND JAMAL HAFID

|              |     |
|--------------|-----|
| Introduction | 277 |
| Epidemiology | 278 |

|                                  |     |
|----------------------------------|-----|
| Norovirus in Morocco             | 279 |
| Norovirus in Spain               | 279 |
| Norovirus in India               | 280 |
| Norovirus in Indonesia           | 280 |
| Norovirus in Australia           | 280 |
| Norovirus in Argentina           | 281 |
| Norovirus and Reemerging Strains | 281 |
| Norovirus Vaccine                | 282 |
| References                       | 282 |

16. Risk Assessment and Biosecurity Considerations in Control of Emergent Plant Viruses

AMAL SOURI, KHADIJA KHATABY, YASSINE KASMI, MUSTAPHA ZEMZAMI, SAAID AMZAZI AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                                                    |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Abbreviations                                                      | 287 |
| Introduction                                                       | 287 |
| Pepino Mosaic Virus: Review                                        | 289 |
| Pest Risk Assessment of Biological and Economic Impact             | 291 |
| Biological Risk Related to Plant Waste                             | 301 |
| Biosafety Issues Associated With Virus-Resistant Transgenic Plants | 303 |
| Agroterrorism                                                      | 304 |
| Conclusion                                                         | 306 |
| References                                                         | 307 |
| Further Reading                                                    | 311 |

17. Human Immunodeficiency Virus as Emergent Viral Infection With the Presence of the Immune Adaptive Response: Viral Dynamics

KARAM ALLALI AND MOULAY MUSTAPHA ENNAJI

|                                                             |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction                                                | 313 |
| Mathematical Analysis of the Basic Model                    | 315 |
| Effect of Cytotoxic T-Lymphocytes on the Infection Dynamics | 318 |
| Analysis of the Adaptive Immune Response Effect             | 320 |
| Conclusion                                                  | 322 |
| Acknowledgments                                             | 323 |
| References                                                  | 323 |

18. Mathematical Modeling in Virology

KHALID HATTAF AND NOURA YOUSFI

|                                               |     |
|-----------------------------------------------|-----|
| Introduction                                  | 325 |
| Modeling With Ordinary Differential Equations | 326 |
| Modeling With Delay Differential Equations    | 328 |
| Modeling With Partial Differential Equations  | 330 |

Conclusions

336

References

337

Index

341