

Contents

	Foreword	iii
	Acknowledgements	ix
	List of contributors	x
	Abbreviations	xiii
	Preface: supporting citizen stewardship	xiv
Chapter 1	A focus on citizen-led action	1
	Paul Martin and Autumn Smith-Herron
	Invasive species: the costs to Australia and the US	2
	Institutional frameworks for citizen action	4
	The challenge of achieving coordinated action	7
	Institutions shape social systems	11
	The evolving framework for citizen responsibility	14
	The challenges of implementing shared responsibility	20
	References	22
Chapter 2	The socio-ecological systems approach	28
	Paul Martin and Michael Reid
	Using the systems thinking approach	30
	Case studies	38
	Conclusions	45
	References	46
Chapter 3	Achieving organisational learning in natural resource management	48
	Katrina Dickson, Robyn Bartel, Dirk Roux and Theodore R Alter
	Introduction	48
	Organisational learning	49

	Adaptive management	53
	Bureaucracies and workplace islands	55
	Leadership	58
	Depth of organisational learning	60
	Organisational learning mechanisms	61
	Concluding remarks	65
	Acknowledgements	65
	Endnotes	65
	References	66
Chapter 4	Framing community engagement	74
	Tanya M Howard and Theodore R Alter
	Rationale and philosophy for action-research collaboration	76
	People and relationships	77
	Framing the chapters	79
	Future research and practice	80
	References	82
Chapter 5	Community engagement theory for a new natural resource management paradigm	84
	Jeffrey C Bridger, Theodore R Alter, Paloma Z Frumento, Tanya M Howard and Lisa B Adams
	Introduction	84
	The expert-citizen relationship	86
	The consequences of expertise	88
	Rethinking the expert-citizen relationship	89
	Bringing the community into the picture	92
	Conclusion	94
	References	94
Chapter 6	Strategy and practice for community engagement	97
	Paloma Z Frumento, Walter E Whitmer, Theodore R Alter, Allyson B Muth, Darren P Marshall and William C Shuffstall
	Introduction	97
	Overarching engagement goals and practices	98
	Collaboratively choosing metrics for success	102
	Conducting action research	102
	Engagement road map	103
	Conclusions	118
	References	119

Chapter 7	Dealing with complexity and change through collective reflection	122
	Allyson B Muth, Paloma Z Frumento and Michael Reid
	Introduction	122
	Collective reflection	124
	Context and necessity	125
	Fostering collective reflection	129
	Challenges of collective reflection	135
	Collective reflection as a learning network	136
	Conclusion	137
	References	138
Chapter 8	Managing outcome-focused, engaged 'human' research	141
	Paul Martin, Theodore R Alter, Donald W Hine, Darryl Low Choy and Paul Curtis
	The value of a scientific approach	142
	Research design	143
	Modernising research	145
	The opportunities and challenges of engaged scholarship	150
	The ethical dimensions	152
	Distilled principles	154
	Endnotes	157
	References	158
Chapter 9	Using human behaviour change strategy to improve the management of invasive species	162
	Lynette J McLeod, Patricia M Please and Donald W Hine
	Developing effective behaviour change interventions	165
	Getting the word out: sharing what is learned about behaviour change	179
	Resources for practitioners	180
	References	181
Chapter 10	Using audience segmentation and targeted social marketing to improve landholder management of invasive animals	183
	Donald W Hine, Trudy Sharp and Aaron B Driver
	Audience segmentation: definition and purpose	183
	History of social marketing	185
	Applications of segmentation to improve NRM in Australia	187
	Conceptual issues, complications and controversies	196
	Methodological issues and guidance for practitioners	200
	Naming and interpreting segmentation solutions	203
	Tailoring and targeting messages	203

	Conclusions	204
	References	205
Chapter 11	Understanding and managing mass media effects on public perceptions of science issues such as invasive species management	210
	Lee Ahern and Colleen Connolly-Ahern
	Public media issues in the management of invasive species	210
	Power of the mass media	211
	Understanding journalistic conventions and how they influence media coverage	212
	Understanding fundamental theories of the mass media	213
	Harnessing citizen journalism in activist communities	219
	Winning the trust of key publics	220
	Using concrete detail, storytelling and narrative to maximise impact	221
	Metaphors and misconceptions	222
	Conclusions	223
	Endnote	224
	References	224
Chapter 12	Steps towards more effective citizen action	227
	Paul Martin, Theodore R Alter and Donald W Hine
	Weed management institutions	229
	Current problems with institutional arrangements	230
	How institutions affect citizen action	231
	Improving institutional arrangements	235
	Achieving institutional alignment	237
	Implementing partnered stewardship	242
	References	244
	Glossary	248
	Appendix: Publications and resources created by the IACRC Program 4E	251
	Index	256