Preface

I. General Description	1
1. Geographic Distribution of Genera and Species	1
2. Uses and Economic Importance	2
3. History of Study of the Chenopodiaceae	4
II. Analysis of Morphological Characters of Chenopodiaceae and Evolutionary Trends	5
1. Trichome Type	5
2. Fruits	8
3. Seed and Perisperm	8
4. Morphology of the Embryo	11
5. Position of Embryo and Radical Orientation	12
6. Bracts and Bractlets	14
7. Leaf Anatomy, C3 to C4 (Kranz)	16
8. Floral Sex	18
9. Perianth (Fruiting Perianth)	20
10. Anther Appendages	22
11. Floral Disk and Rudimental Stamens	23
12. Pollen Grains	24
13. Leaf Morphology and Arrangement	27
14. Jointed Internode Morphology	29
15. Inflorescence	30
16. Root System and Root Sprouting	31
17. Life Form and Life Span (Relationship Between Herbs and Shrubs)	31
18. Chromosomes	32
19. Populations	32
III. Chenopodiaceae Plants and Analysis of General Evolutionary Trends	35
1. Transition from Insect Pollination to Wind Pollination	35
2. Arid-adapted Variation in Plant Body Construction	36
IV. A New System of Taxa for Chenopodiaceae	38
Subfamily I. CHENOPODIOIDEAE Ulbrich	38

Subfamily II. SUAEDIOIDEAE Ulbrich	39
Subfamily III. ATRIPLICIOIDEAE	39
Subfamily IV. CAMPHOROSMEOIDEAE Moq.	40
Subfamily V. CORISPERMEOIDEAE Moq.	41
Subfamily VI. SALICORNIOIDEAE Dum.	41
Subfamily VII. SALSOLOIDEAE Ulbrich	42
V. Synoptical Arrangement of the Chenopodiaceae	44
VI. Formation of Recent Distribution Patterns	45
1. Comparison of Number of Genera by Area	45
2. Distribution Center	52
3. Analysis of Generic Disjunct Distributions	52
VII. Origin of the Chenopodiaceae	54
VIII. Assessment of Extant Genera of Chenopodiaceae	56
Subfamily I. CHENOPODIOIDEAE Ulbrich	56
Subfamily II. SUAEDIOIDEAE Ulbrich	101
Subfamily III. ATRIPLICIOIDEAE	117
Subfamily IV. CAMPHOROSMEOIDEAE Moq.	174
Subfamily V. CORISPERMEOIDEAE Moq.	216
Subfamily VI. SALICORNIOIDEAE Dum.	235
Subfamily VII. SALSOLOIDEAE Ulbrich	258
Appendix I : New Taxa	330
Appendix II : Genera That Should be Included in Amaranthaceae and Other Families	347
References	355
Index of Genera and Subfamily Names	359
