

"With a writing style rich with mythological, literary, and entomological references, Jean-Marc Drouin demonstrates how these tiny beings, champions of animal diversity and prosperity, play a large role in the natural balance."

—Colette Bitsch, Paul Sabatier University

"With an erudition as vast as the world of insects, Drouin explores the numberless ways in which scholars and commentators have reflected on our interactions with these wonderful and often bothersome animals."

—Pietro Corsi, author of The Age of Lamarck: Evolutionary Theories in France, 1790–1830

"A Philosophy of the Insect is a work of profound insight into humanity's encounter with the insect world. Analyzing a long history of human fascination and repulsion with creatures remote from us in size and structure, it invites us to reflect on the ethics of our relations with the wider animal world and even our own status as social beings."

—Robert Fox, University of Oxford

"As erudite as it is philosophically stimulating, Drouin's incredible book takes us through the world of insects. A Philosophy of the Insect is replete with innumerable surprises: imagining giant fleas taking part in high jump tournaments, analyzing the perfect geometry of bee cells, and studying the terrible wars of ants."

—Thierry Hoquet, Université Paris Nanterre

"A Philosophy of the Insect is an insightful look at the meaning of insects in the life sciences, literature, philosophy, and political thought. It carries forth, with an inviting style and in an innovative manner, the current decentering of the human with reference to other forms of life, often drastically different from us."

—Michael Marder, author of Energy Dreams: Of Actuality

JEAN-MARC DROUIN is a retired professor of philosophy and the history of science at the National Museum of Natural History in Paris and a member of the Centre Alexandre Koyré. His works include L'Écologie et son histoire (1993) and L'Herbier des philosophes (2008).

ANNE TRAGER is a translator and editor based in France. She is the founder of Le French Book, an independent press publishing English translations of French fiction.

Columbia University Press/ New York
cup.columbia.edu

COVER DESIGN BY Julia Kushnirsky
COVER IMAGE BY istockphoto

ISBN: 978-0-231-17579-1

9 780231 175791