LIFE ASCENDING:
The Ten Great Inventions of Evolution

"A writer who's not afraid to think big—and think hard."

—FRANK WILCZEK, 2004 Nobel Laureate in Physics

"Excellent and imaginative. . . . A fascinating book for anyone interested in life and evolution, and how these discoveries were made."

—LEWIS WOLPERT, Nature

"Lane . . . writes about tricky topics like the chemistry of photosynthesis with grace and ease. . . . He not only reports on the latest research on each topic but also sometimes steps in with intriguing ideas of his own."

—CARL ZIMMER, Discover

"With clarity and vigor . . . Lane shows how the critical components and mechanisms of complex life . . . could have developed."

—PETER DIZIKES, New York Times Book Review
