

Contents

1. COLLEGE AND YOU 1

Why go to college? Extrinsic motives. Concealed motives. Defense mechanisms. Attitudes toward success. The meaning of success. The impact of the college experience. Sources of influence and stimulation. Trauma and triumph in learning.
2. LEARNING: A PSYCHOLOGICAL PROCESS 17

Learning and self-concept. The learning of sense and nonsense. Learning and the area of self-involvement. Learning as reinforcement. Memorization. Learning from models.
3. LEARNING: A PROBLEM-SOLVING APPROACH 29

The place of strategy in learning. Learning and self-involvement. The problem-solving approach. What is the problem? Problems in the first encounter. Problems in scheduling. Problems in motivation. Steps in problem solving. Recognizing and defining problems. Selecting appropriate strategies. Testing or trying out strategies. Evaluating results. Revising strategies. Strategies as games. Personal qualities and the use of strategies. Students who stay in college vs. dropouts. Personal qualities associated with academic success. Strategies used by successful and unsuccessful students.

4. LEARNING: AN ADVENTURE IN COMMUNICATION (I) 53
- The importance of communication. Input, output, and feedback. Input. Reading: the need for speed. Enjoyment of reading. Remedial measures. Studying. Lecture notes.
5. LEARNING: AN ADVENTURE IN COMMUNICATION (II) OUTPUT 69
- The role of output in learning. Written assignments. Making use of the typewriter. Discussion. Feedback.
6. GETTING THE MOST OUT OF INSTRUCTORS 83
- How students may make educational processes more efficient. Getting to know instructors as people. The instructor as a model and a reinforcer of learning. The instructor as an authority figure. Effect of earlier experiences with teachers. High school teachers and college instructors. Teachers are not parents. Rewards for work accomplished.*
7. LEARNING AND OTHER STUDENTS 103
- Learning and the environment. How students can interfere with normal learning processes. Conflicts between student goals and instructor goals. Differences in college campuses. Sanctions against serious students. Reasons for student resistance to learning. How students can facilitate normal learning processes. Voluntary organizations of students. Finding a study partner. Tutoring. Using other students to improve motivation. Disadvantages in studying with others. Learning to solve problems.

8. FAILURE AND ITS REMEDIES 119

Vocational counseling. Help with emotional problems.
 Signals of impending failure. Dropping courses. A study technique that "has everything." Academic success as a routine.

REFERENCES 137

INDEX 139