

Contents

Editors' Preface vii

Author's Foreword and Acknowledgements ix

- 1 Up to the Sixteenth Century 1
- 2 The First Bird Book 24
- 3 The First British List 42
- 4 The Willughby/Ray Ornithology and Other Seventeenth-Century Works 59
- 5 The Systema naturae: Dawn of a New Age 82
- 6 The First Ornithological Ecologists: White, Jenner and Blackwall 100
- 7 Early studies of migration: Legg, Jenner and others 123
- 8 A Dictionary and Two Histories 139
- 9 The Artists and Their Avifaunas 159
- 10 Alfred Newton and the Founding of the British Ornithologists' Union 183
- 11 Theories of Classification, the National Collection and the Catalogue of Birds 209
- 12 The Twentieth Century: Winds of Change 235
- 13 Recording the Avifauna of Britain 261
- 14 Migration: the Scientific Studies Begin 290
- 15 Plumage, Cages, Eggs and Shooting: the History of Bird Protection 314
- 16 Behavioural and Ecological Studies 334
- 17 After the War 351
- 18 Post-War Ornithological Research 373
- 19 The British List and Problems with Fraud 395
- 20 New Slants on Old Problems 421

Appendix: The British List 430

References and Further Reading 446

Index 461