

Contents

Foreword by Ernest Naylor	page vii
Preface: 'A fragment of a possible world'	ix
Acknowledgements	xv
1 Introduction	1
2 Growth unlimited: blooms, swarms and plagues	17
3 Self-regulating systems: from machines to humans	41
4 The wealth of homeodynamic responses	69
5 A cybernetic approach to growth analysis	93
6 A control mechanism for Maia	116
7 The three levels of adaptation	138
8 Population growth and its control	170
9 Hierarchy: a controlled harmony	204
10 History of hormesis and links to homeopathy	234
11 Maian mechanisms for hormesis and catch-up growth	266
12 Cellular growth control and cancer	292
13 Human overpopulation	327
14 Our finite Earth	359
15 The Maia hypothesis and anagenesis	399
Glossary	414
Further reading	425
References	427
Index	436