

Advance Praise for Tigerland and Other Unintended Destinations

"This delightfully readable memoir illustrates why the best field biology is also adventure, and why the search for adventure is the best way to conduct field biology."

—Edward O. Wilson, University Research Professor Emeritus at Harvard University

"Eric Dinerstein has a marvelous eye for detail and a beguiling, self-deprecating style. He charms the reader with tales of his encounters with animals such as the snow leopard and he richly salts his stories with insights into the evolutionary genius that produced these vanishing creatures."

—Eugene Linden, author of The Parrot's Lament

"More than almost anyone else alive, Eric Dinerstein has gone where the wild things are. Part travelogue, part autobiography, Tigerland is filled with stories of exploration and adventure, told with wisdom, wit, and affection."

—David S. Wilcove, Princeton University, author of The Condor's Shadow
